

Philip Palmer is a sole practitioner in Ottawa. In Justice Canada he worked in senior legal positions with, among others, the Department of Communications, the Immigration and Refugee Board, the Competition Bureau and Industry Canada. Among the legislative projects to which he contributed were the Radiocommunication Act, Broadcasting Act, Telecommunications Act, the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act and Canada's Anti-Spam Legislation. Philip currently practices administrative, internet, privacy and telecommunications law in Ottawa as PhilipPalmerLaw. He is a principal of the Windermere Group and a member of the board of directors of the Internet Society Canada Chapter, for which he has contributed to numerous public policy submissions.