Sylvie Frigon
Manager of Cyber Policy, Public Safety Canada

Sylvie Frigon manages the development of public policy within the National Cyber Security Directorate of Public Safety Canada. Before joining Public Safety in 2016, Sylvie worked with the Canada Revenue Agency's Compliance Enforcement Branch and Public Affairs Branch, before spending nine years at FINTRAC, Canada's Financial Intelligence Unit.

In addition to the development of policy and regulatory initiatives related to cyber security, her previous experiences included work on intelligence and on compliance priorities in support of Canada's anti-money laundering and anti-terrorist activity financing efforts, and a focus on privacy-related matters such as the assessment of the privacy impact of new programs and exchanges of information in an intelligence and law enforcement setting.
